

GRADY ROAD MOVEMENT IS DRAWING TO A CLOSE

Only Eight More Days Before
It Goes to the Hands of Voters

With campaign committees organized in every ward of the city, thirteen thousand folders in the hands of the voters, and now the assurance of their coming in every fifteen minutes, individuals and organizations in Grady looking forward to the election on the last eight days of its progress.

A week from tomorrow, on May 5, the matter of whether the city is to have a modern, business-like hospital, or go on with the old collection of shanties and makeshifts which now serve that purpose, will be settled by the voters. Every effort is being made to put before the people the picture of Grady's hospital as it is today. The efforts of the various committees are concentrated, not so much on pointing out the virtues of the new hospital as on showing the utter inadequacy of the present institution. The workers are going on the principle that if Atlanta, as a whole, can be induced to the realization of what Grady hospital is at present, no further argument will be needed.

It is the best illustration of what happens when a great city spends money to one of its most important institutions.

An indication of the general interest which is being shown in this direction was to be found in the number of persons who called Sunday at the hospital. Several hundred Dr. W. B. Sims, superintendent of the hospital, and his assistants showed them through the dark, unventilated passages, and wards, and the outdoor clinic, where whites and negroes are treated together, and the various departments, where mothers sit all day in half-darkness, and the new modern building, which was erected by the city in 1910. Not one of the visitors but, on seeing the hospital, passed his intention of voting for the hospital.

Sunday was the kind of day when Grady shows up at its best. The weather of the old hospital is bad enough, but when the temperature goes up a little, it becomes unbearable. The plan by which it is built makes this inevitable. None of the buildings of the new one is over two stories high, and the main part of Grady is built in a series of small buildings, each building is placed in such a manner as to shut off the air from the main building. None of the old buildings are provided with sufficient windows. Anything like a heating system—something which no modern hospital is without—has not been erected.

A consequence Grady, which is bad enough in any weather, becomes a torture-house when it is hot. This summer, with every ward overcrowded and patients lying in the corridors, it will be worse than ever. Next summer, when the bonds are passed, it will be worse yet. The improvement of Atlanta grows, the demands of the old institution grow, and the more hopelessly beyond its capacities.

"Those bonds simply have to go through," said Ivan E. Allen, vice chairman of the campaign committee, today. "Any citizen who knows the present situation will vote for the new hospital. It is a question of whether that hospital, there wouldn't be a dissenting voice, of course, every citizen can make a personal inspection, but every citizen can look over the photographs in the booklet which has been sent out by this committee. Those pictures tell their own story."

A meeting of the ward committee of the Fourth ward will be held tonight at the home of Mr. W. M. Ragdale, 357 1/2 West street.

MEMORIAL SERVICES AT CAPITOL VIEW BAPTIST
Camp W. H. T. Walker, U. C.
V. March in Uniforms of Gray

Memorial services were held at the Capitol View Baptist Church Sunday by Camp W. H. T. Walker, 925 U. C. They were arranged in gray uniform and met in a body at Dill and Beattie avenues, marching in a body to the church.

After a meal, composed of the choirs of a number of churches, C. W. Mangum led in prayer, and Adjutant J. H. Shepley, called the roll, showing that six of their number had died during the year.

Adjutant General A. J. West delivered the oration and was frequently applauded. General West paid a high tribute to the memory of Jefferson Davis, president of the confederacy.

The annual memorial sermon was delivered by Rev. A. C. Hendley, who took his text, John 15: "I am the vine, no man can have this that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Much interest prevailed throughout the exercises and a large congregation turned out to welcome the old veterans of the sixties.

The camp leaves in a few days for a trip to Florida.

CITY HALL CLOSES AFTER NOON TODAY

Because of the Memorial day celebration, the city hall will close at 12 o'clock Monday. A holiday atmosphere prevailed the building Monday, and the city hall was closed in any of the offices.

The work of maintaining the interior of the building for Shriners week is steadily forward, and the old tan-colored walls are being repainted a pretty blue in the halls and some of the offices. The other offices are being painted a light green.

SALE OF A. B. & A. R. R.
TO BE HELD ON MAY 15

The pending sale of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad under court orders has been announced definitely to be held on May 15. The sale was set for last week, but was deferred. E. T. Lamb, receiver of the road, announced Monday the date to which the transaction has been postponed.

WHY ABOUT YOUR CHOICE BONUSES FOR GRADY?

The other day when those firemen were overcome by smoke, Grady hospital had to send eleven sick folks home in order to make room for them. The firemen were sicker than the convalescents; and they were the best of the best.

That's the way it is at Grady hospital. The sickest man gets a bed till he begins to feel a little better and somebody else comes in. He takes no attention, worse than he has.

Old Grady is pathetic in its decrepitude. It has been worked to a frazzle. There isn't enough of it. And what's there is worn out—consequently it wears out.

"We got along from day to day the best we can," the superintendent will tell you. He spends a couple of hours, every day, looking for patients well enough to be sent home, so others can be admitted.

The normal capacity of Grady hospital is about 185 patients. The actual capacity, stowing them everywhere, is about 260. Yet this month the average has been over 320 a day.

How did they do it? By making the corridors into the corridors, out on the porches, filling the corridors with them after the wards had overflowed.

Things can't keep up like this, Mr. Voter!

Atlanta's good name can't stand it. Something's got to be done. We can't even temporize. We've got to take radical action—unless we've got to take it.

There's that bond issue: $750,000 for the improvement of Grady hospital.

It will be up to us on May 5.

Will our vote be "aye?"

THEATERS
Andrea de Seguro
Swats Elevator Boy
At Georgian Terrace

Andrea de Seguro, grand opera bass, narrowly escaped falling down elevator shaft at the Georgian Terrace Monday morning and got so mad about it that he punched the elevator boy five times in the face and was threatened with arrest by the youth.

Rehilitating a pair of badly scared and swollen knuckles, Seguro gathered his comrades around him on the Terrace veranda and vividly described his encounter.

"When I am arrested," he pleaded with mock terror, "you, my friends, you will come and sing to me? Yes, you will warble outside my gray cell and save me to weep."

"Yes, yes," enthusiastically declared Anna Case, "and when the starlin and 'Yes' chime in Rosina Van Dyck and Richard Hagen and Otto Corrie, 'Tell us about the fight!' they chorused."

Seguro squared off before a plant-boss and glowered at it. Then he took his monocle and put it on again and took it off once more and began.

"I had just arrived, Miss Case. I live on six. I am nine at the elevator stop, and the boy got off to show me the elevator. When it comes up, the boy tell me that my boy is downstairs and say he will be up in a minute."

"As I start to get out the elevator, I push it off. I jump back and not quickly. And save myself. So I turn on him and say, 'You know not your duty?'—and say, 'I guess yes I do.'"

"He was impudent, that fellow, so I draw back and hit him on the ear and so."

Seguro illustrated by a couple of passes in the atmosphere.

"He say he will report me! That's all."

All baseball will turn out to welcome Cap Anson, who, the famous old Chicago ball club, Cap Anson will tell stories of the game and his own experiences while winning pennants and leading the league in hitting.

Mabel Fitzgerald, the laugh girl; Al. brothers, in a laughable acrobatic comedy, and Marion and Murray, in songs and dances, will assist in making the bill great entertainment.

"Ann Boyd," the thrilling story of northern Georgia life, will have its first offering on Atlanta stage at the Lyric tonight. It is a dramatization of the book by that name by Will N. Harben. All the heroes of the work of this favorite Georgian author have read and reread the book and look forward eagerly to seeing "Ann Boyd" and her friends and enemies in real life.

Miss LaVerne will play the part she created and starred in at the Lyric, New York. As the dramatization is also here she will appear in the dress and rather unique role of author and star. Marguerite Chaffer is again happily cast and Olive B. LaVerne will have her first big role of the season. There is a new and original cast of twenty-two characters in which all the regular members of the company will be seen to good advantage.

There isn't a vaudeville lover in the city but what can recall Golden and Hughes, the comic comedians who made such a big hit on their last appearance at the Lyric. These clever old timers are one of the big features at the Grand this week and are expected to prove a big drawing card. Other Junior Keith vaudeville numbers include the Castilians, who will reproduce with living poses a dozen or more of the world's most famous art stars and statues, and a group of young and talented girls in a dandy dancing specialty; the Three Graces, who will present a scenic novelty, "A September Morn in Alaska," and Herbert Hodge and Mildred Lowell in the laughing skit, "Cupid's Mistake."

In addition to these splendid features the management will offer another four-act feature film that is said to be well worth the patrons' attention. It is entitled "The Dead Man Walks." Three performances daily at 2:30, 7:30 and 9 o'clock.

MEXICANS STOP SHRINER ON HIS WAY TO ATLANTA

K. M. Van Zandt, of Mexico City, Arrested as He Was About to Leave for Meet

A new invasion of Mexico is threatened for the rescue of a Shriner arrested in Mexico City Sunday as he was about to leave on his way to Atlanta.

The dispatches told Monday morning that K. M. Van Zandt, president of the American Club in Mexico City, with all the other officers and trustees of the club, had been arrested by the Huerta government.

Mr. Van Zandt is the official representative of American temples, Mexico City, to the imperial council of the Shriner's temple which will assemble here in a few days.

I received a letter from Noble Van Zandt day before yesterday," said J. C. Greenfield, secretary of the local council, who acted immediately after he had read the dispatch.

"It is confirmed the reservation of his hotel quarters here, making it definite that he was coming."

Potential Forster Adair was both innocent and amused by the dispatch. "It is an outrage," said he. "The fact that Noble Van Zandt has been designated by his fellow-members of Ancestral temple—Americans and Mexicans as well as other nationalities—to represent them in the Atlanta meeting indicates the confidence and esteem in which he is held. Treatment like this cannot be merited."

Adair said steps would be taken at once to urge the liberation of Mr. Van Zandt, but he had little hope of their success. He believes the imprisonment is in time for Mr. Van Zandt to reach the Atlanta meeting.

ONE MEMBER COMING.
At least one member of Ancestral temple will be here, though. The news was published the other day that General Felix Diaz, now of Brooklyn, nephew of the former dictator, is coming with Mexico, and cannot temple from New York and Brooklyn.

"I don't know what the outcome of Noble Van Zandt's arrest will be," said Mr. Adair. "It may stir the Shriner's so that after the Atlanta meeting they will send all their patrols to Mexico with semitars drawn to rescue him."

Ask Charter for Bank.
An Atlanta stage was chartered by Secretary of State Phil C. Cook, by a number of Lumpkin county citizens for a charter for the Bank of Dahlonega with $25,000 capital.

Those applying for this charter are E. B. Vickery, H. Heard, H. D. Gurley, W. T. Townsend, E. E. Crismon and O. J. Lilly.

he will have me arrest. So now I wait for the police.

"It was awfully hard for Seguro to deal with the monkey on but he got it done."

"You see," he concluded, "I am pretty good here. But your elevator boys, no, I will not hurt them. You might need them in Mexico."

HOLDS MANY MINISTERS DO NOT BELIEVE IN BIBLE

Pastor Russell Says Theological Seminary Has Bad Effect on Graduates

"There is hardly a single minister in this country who has graduated from a theological seminary in the past twenty years who is a student of the Bible," asserted Pastor Russell, of Brooklyn, N. Y., at his exhibition of the moving picture, "Photoplay of the Creation," at the Atlanta theater Sunday night.

Pastor Russell is endeavoring, with moving picture portrayals, to demonstrate to every person in his audience that the story of the creation, as told in the Bible, is historically and scientifically correct in every detail. These pictures will be shown daily for a month.

He deplores the lack of faith in the Bible that is taught all pupils of our colleges, says Pastor Russell.

"The ministers and preachers educated at theological seminaries do not preach openly against the anti-Bible theories advanced by our college professors, because they themselves have no faith in the revelations of the Bible."

Eager for Mexico

The lure of war led another deserter, R. J. White, 22 years old, of 41 Com street, to surrender himself in the police and ask that he be reinstated in the service in the hope of going to war.

White was a member of company 164, of the United States coast artillery, stationed at Fort Monroe.

W. F. WESLEY REPLIES TO W. H. ABBOTT

Mr. Abbott said in his card in Sunday's Constitution that those who opposed him politically, and I judge that applied to me, were attempting to place him in an attitude of being against the salary system, was unfair and intended to deceive.

Far be it from me, Mr. Abbott, to treat you unfair, and I am sure that no fair-minded person will say that I have attempted to deceive anyone as to where you stand on the salary system.

I have said in every way that I have advertised for four months (and that has been many) that you was opposed to the salary system and favored the fee system, and I say it again.

And on last Friday evening, at the Human Yard Park, where you and I both addressed a large gathering of people, I charged you then and there, most positively, as being opposed to the salary system, and you sat there with your mouth closed, like a clam, and never denied the charge that I made—that you was opposed to the salary system.

If I had charged you falsely, why did you not rise in your manhood and say to those good people that you favored the salary system?

No, my dear Mr. Abbott, it's you that is attempting to deceive the people by evading that all important question, the salary system. For you will not say that you favor the salary system, and the people will not vote for you. Mr. Abbott, the boat has left you.

Vote for W. F. Wesley—HE IS A WINNER.

MORE THAN 10,000 FAIL TO MAKE TAX RETURNS

MUST BE PAID BY THURSDAY, OR Pay Usual Delinquent Fine

Although the books of the county tax collector, T. M. Armistead, will close on Tuesday morning more than 10,000 taxpayers have as yet failed to make their returns.

The returns have been made with unusual slowness this year, and although the books have been open since February 1 returns have been made only by 15,000 people.

On the 26th of April the tax receiver will turn over the books to the recently appointed county tax assessors, who will then close them over.

The tax receiver urges that all those who have not yet made their returns do so at once and avoid the usual penalties.

The books formerly were open until the 1st of May, but close two months earlier this year on account of the new law.

held by this government at Fort Bliss since the battle of Ojinaga, would be transferred to Fort Wingo, New Mexico, to get them away from the border where trouble may be expected. It is stated that Brigadier General Huerta will start the movement of the exiles as soon as the situation permits.

INTEREST IN MEDIATION

Efforts at mediation, however, were the most in evidence of all other elements in the crisis. It was reported that General Huerta had been communicated with through private sources before the mediation proposals were announced by the Latin-American diplomats and that had at that time practical assurances from close associates of the provisional Mexican president that he would accept their good offices.

MARTIAL LAW PRACTICABLE

Martial law was considered most practicable. Admiral Fletcher reported that proposed provisions for regulation of the new establishment at Vera Cruz contemplated that officials to be appointed might be Americans, Mexicans or any other national, "it being the intent and purpose to extend to the inhabitants of the territory as large participation in the government as may be practical with due consideration for the ends to be hereby accomplished."

ATLANTA BAR ASSN. PAYS TRIBUTE TO LATE JURIST

Submit Resolutions of Highest Possible Praise to Late Judge Hopkins

In the supreme court room of the state capital Monday at noon, a striking and beautiful memorial to the late Judge John Livingston Hopkins, of Atlanta, was held.

Before the six judges of the supreme court, a committee from the Atlanta Bar association, headed by Alex C. King, submitted resolutions of the highest possible praise to Judge Hopkins as one of the state's most distinguished jurists, its greatest statesman, writer and citizen. To these resolutions read by Alex C. King, Justice J. H. Lumpkin of the supreme court responded.

On the bench were Chief Justice W. C. Ruff, Judge W. T. Newman, of the United States district court, Associate Justice J. H. Lumpkin, Beverly D. Evans, H. Warner Hill, Marcus W. Beck and Samuel C. Atkinson.

Governor John M. Slaton and many other prominent members of the Atlanta bar were present in the court room. Besides Mr. King, Governor Slaton, Lauder D. Rogers, Jr., Saunders, McDaniel, and Robert C. Austin appeared as members of the bar association committee.

As a pattern of judicial duty well known to the learned lawyer, as a type of the ideal of his profession, as a citizen who stood for the public good and to protect against any lowering of public standards, as a champion of the weak—this quiet gentleman made his impression on the minds of those who heard him. He was a life-long student of the law, and he spent his entire life, but he wielded a potent influence throughout the entire state.

Mr. King in his tribute to Judge Hopkins said:

REVIEW OF HIS LIFE.
The King then reviewed the life of the distinguished jurist. From his birth in Madisonville, Monroe county, Tennessee, on September 24, 1828, to his death in Atlanta, on October 20, 1912, Judge Hopkins was a life-long student of the law. ## COLD BATHS FIRST THING ON PROGRAM FOR STARS

Opera Singers Plunge Into Tubs Filled With Ice Water

The question of the hour to every grand opera star in Atlanta Monday, to the dozen or more at the Ansley and to the score at the Georgian Terrace was not the opera, not entertainments, not Mexico nor any of those things but just a tub of cold water.

"What are you going to do today?" eagerly asked the reporters.

"First," said Riccardo Martin, drawing one of them aside. His brown eyes gleamed with fun. "I will tell you a state secret. Don't dare to repeat my plans. I am going to take a bath."

That was what they all said. The ball game, the summer weather, automobile rides—all could come afterward. The bath was the thing.

But once properly tubbed, there was great anticipation over the program for the day. A group of stars gathered on the Terrace veranda debated the relative merits of the Atlanta-Memphis baseball game or an automobile ride to Roswell.

Rosina Van Dyck declared for the ball game.

"I am crazy about baseball," she announced emphatically. "And we were so busy in New York that I haven't seen a game this year. I shall go out and see them—what you call them—these Biscuits—no, Crackers! I shall see the Crackers play."

A number of the other stars agreed that the ball game was the one best bet. But just then Colonel Peel came up with Harry M. Atkinson and announced various social functions that had been laid to rival the great American sport.

"I am crazy about baseball," she announced emphatically. "And we were so busy in New York that I haven't seen a game this year. I shall go out and see them—what you call them—these Biscuits—no, Crackers! I shall see the Crackers play."

LEAVES LARGE ESTATE TO HER FOUR DAUGHTERS

The will of the late Mrs. Caroline A. Hase, leaving an estate of an estimated value of $40,000 in trust for her four daughters, Blanche, Clementine, Ellen and Elizabeth, has been probated in the office of the ordinary.

The deceased divided her jewelry collection among the four daughters and her three sons, Leopold, Arthur and Herbert J. Hase. The sons are made executors and trustees and are required to give any bond.

The will provides that the estate be held intact, the daughters enjoying the income until it is found to be of the best interest of all for a division.

GEORGIA BOY'S BRAVERY IS PRaised IN CONGRESS

of splendid manhood, buoyant and full of hope. His proud spirit rests today in the bosom of the Master. He sleeps in the tranquil and quiet peace of heroic duty done. In the tender love and affection of his comrades his generous and beautiful sacrifice shall be shared. His life's motto to live, his bravery and courage will inspire in the hearts of his countrymen a greater national soul, a loftier and more exalted patriotism, while his splendid heroism shall live and be perpetuated in the admiration and devotion of a liberty-loving and patriotic people.

TO BE BURIED AT HOME.
Congressman Walker has perfected arrangements for the return of Private Sumner's body to the United States. It will be interred with military honors, at the expense of the United States government.

The Georgia congressman, who is a member of the foreign affairs committee of the House, commended the policy of the administration in the present crisis, and in his speech mentioned the committee on foreign affairs. He favored and commended peace. He had formerly wished and hoped that the heretofore peaceful and friendly relations which had so long existed between this government and our sister republic might be maintained and preserved.

"I have at all times deeply sympathized with and been in perfect accord with the policies of the president of the United States in dealing with the many delicate situations that have arisen and confronted from time to time in dealing with Mexico. The wisdom of his policies I yet approve. His able administration, his sincere desire, his devoted and patriotic service as the president of this republic can question."

"Mr. Speaker, I still yet hope for peace in Mexico, although the war clouds which they seem to invite are gathering thick and fast about the shores of this union and unhappy people. Whether, or not it may be possible to mediate our differences as now proposed with Mexico, I shall not at this time undertake to discuss. That is for Congress to decide. It is a serious offer of the three South American countries to accept of the United States upon a friendly basis is at this time laid under existing conditions more convincing proof before the nation of the world that our honest purpose and sincere desire is to bring about peace, but HONORABLE PEACE."

"I have for peace, but I am not the honorable to ask for peace; but if the price of peace in the present crisis with the mad and distracted Mexico is to condone open, flagrant and studied murder upon the flag uniform of the honor, then, Mr. Speaker, I am no longer for peace, but I shall then take place among the countless number of American citizens and patriots in defense of our flag, our uniform and our national honor, who are ready and willing, if needs be, to sacrifice their lives and renown of the seventeen young American heroes who lie dead at Vera Cruz."

ONE RECORD:
A. P. Stewart, Tax Collector, running for re-election after 25 years' service—and "fees," says:

"I stand on my RECORD."

All right, here it is:
A. P. STEWART, Tax Collector,
Plaintiff in Error
Versus
Commissioners of Roads and Revenues of Fulton County,
Defendant in Error.

Judge Pendleton held the salary act good. Stewart appealed to the Supreme Court. Among other things, he said the salary act was bad because it attempted "to deprive him of his private property without due process of law." His office—his fees—"private property"—think of it, Mr. Voter! Is it not time to "excuse him" from further service? He will claim the whole COUNTY next time!

THE OTHER RECORD:
C. I. Branan, candidate against Stewart, has spent twenty years of time and money in fighting for the people of this county, to STOP "fees" to county officers and SUBSTITUTE SALARIES.

The only way to do it is to elect Branan. He pledges himself personally and officially, to see the law passed and ENFORCED. This will not only save the people of this county ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS each year, but Branan will never claim that he owns the office.

NOT ON THE PROGRAM AT ALL

When members of the Metropolitan company gathered on the veranda at the Terrace Monday morning, Riccardo Marini, at left, had Otto Gortz be conducted by the opera. Gortz, on the left, is doing his best, but he had to have the aid of Richard Hazeman. It looks like Andrea de Segurula got the best of both of 'em, though. He's "the man behind." Rosina Van Dyck is the chapeau.

TROVATORE
By Nana Tucker
Tuesday Evening,
April 28

THROUGH all changes of taste and style in the different schools of dramatic music "Trovatore" still holds its own in public favor. Of works of the past, perhaps, than any other opera. Being one of Verdi's earlier inspirations it belongs to the old Italian school, with artificial choruses, regardless of the dramatic development of the story. And the orchestration, instead of being an integral element as in all modern operas, is little more than a rich accompaniment. Yet the vocal score abounds in melodies whose lyric beauty has been seldom surpassed, and which have sung their way into the hearts of the people of the world over.

"Il Trovatore" has been described as a melodrama gone mad. The climax of its sensationalism being reached in the highly colored plot which is a re-enactment of a little Spanish drama, "The Gypsy's Vengeance," by Garcia Gutierrez, an ambitious youth who at the age of seventeen wrote and produced it as a play to procure funds to save himself from conscription.

The time is the beginning of the fifteenth century; the play, partly in Blacay, partly in Arragon, one of the powerful divisions of Spain. The curtain rises on a midnight scene in the guard room of the palace Alcazar. Fernando (basso), an old retainer, rouses the guards and servants grouped near him and bids them keep more faithful watch for the young Count de Luna, jealous of the troubadour Manrico, is wakened, and wanders listlessly beneath the windows of the Lady Leonora, singing a lively ballad in mazurka time. In which he relates the story of Garcia, the long lost brother of the count. It is to the effect that the little Garcia, in his cradle, was saved by a strange gypsy of cruel aspect who was bewitched him, causing him to grow ill and pine away. The gypsy was burned at the stake, and in revenge her daughter was sent abroad from since, though continued search is still made for him.

Love for Manrico.
As the narrative closes the scene changes to the gardens of the palace, the hour is late, yet Leonora (soprano), lingers, and in a lovely style, beginning slowly, then working up to a full Verdi's favorite style, contemplates her attendant, liner (soprano), her love for Manrico, the handsome troubadour she has crowned victor at a recent tournament. Inex, begging her to forget him, hopes she may "never" repeat the day she learned to love so madly.

As they ascend the steps of the palace the count (baritone), enters the garden singing of his passion for Leonora. Then from behind the scenes the sound of a bell and a fascinating serenade is heard; recognizing the voice of Manrico (tenor), she count wails in jealous indignation. Leonora, descending into the garden, and mistaking the cloaked figure of the count for Manrico, greets him in accents of tender affection. Manrico, coming forward, charges her with infidelity, but Leonora, seeing her error, flies to him for protection from the now infuriated count, who challenges the troubadour to mortal combat. The trio here is very intense and dramatic—the altercation between the three—until Leonora, finding intervention powerless, falls to the ground lifeless, as the rivals retire with drawn swords.

Act second presents a gypsy camp, and opens with the spirited anvil chorus—"We will have a life with pleasure laden"—the rhythm accented with hammer upon anvil. Manrico, who has been wounded this recent battle, is being nursed back to health by his supposed mother, Azucena (contralto). In answer to his entreaty she sings an aria charged with intense feeling, "Fierce No with Flames," in which she describes the fearful scene when her mother was burned at the stake and her own sensations when, after stealing the sick child, intending to share the same horrible fate, she had by mistake thrown her own infant into the flames. As the story comes, a dramatic dialogue with Manrico takes place, and he assures her that he loves her as if she were his own mother, but Azucena, withholding from him the real knowledge of his parentage, reminding him of her faithful care. A messenger now arrives, summoning Manrico to the defense of the castle of Castellar, and reporting that Leonora, supposing him dead, is about to take the veil in a neighboring convent.

LEONORA LED AWAY TO THE FORTRESS.
The scene changes to the convent. It is night. The count, who, with his attendants, has come to abduct Leonora, sings a beautifully sustained aria, "Brighter Than the Stars of Heaven"; and when with the ringing of the convent bell, Leonora, with a procession of nuns, passes on her way to the cloister, he sees her; but Manrico, appearing suddenly, places himself between them. His followers overcome those of the count, and Leonora is led away in safety to the fortress of Castellar, which he had been ordered to defend.

The third act opens with a lively soldiers' chorus, in the camp of the count. Active preparation is being made for the storming of the fortress, and Leonora has been a spy, is dragged in, and as she sings a plaintive appeal to the absent Manrico, is recognized as the gypsy who stole the count's brother, and condemned to be burned.

A change of scene discloses a room adjoining the chapel of Castellar. Manrico and Leonora have a beautiful duet as they are about to enter the chapel to be united, but Ruiz (tenor), friend to Manrico, hastens in with the report that Azucena is to be executed, and Manrico rushes off to her aid. Before he goes, however, pausing to sing the brilliant aria known as "Di Quella Pira" ("Ah! Sight of Horror!"), a general favorite with great tenors.

The last act is the crown of the work, and full of beautiful melody. It takes place in a fortress wing of the count's palace. Manrico in attempting to rescue Azucena has been captured and imprisoned with her. He is beheld as a state prisoner at the very hour of her execution.

THE COUNT AND LEONORA IN DRAMATIC DIALOGUE.
Accompanied by Ruiz, Leonora, having offered her own escape, makes her way, the night before, to the palace grounds in the effort to free Manrico. She sings a florid and passionate aria; then, standing beneath the tower in which he lies, and hearing the chorus of prisoners in their death wail of the dyer. As the tones of the voice of Manrico, "Ah! I have Sighed to Rest Me," floats out from the turret, she answers him with sobs and cries, and here ensues the touching scene known as the "Miserere," the number so generally admired, and which never fails to move and charm the audience. The count enters, and he and Leonora have a dramatic dialogue in which she offers herself in marriage as the price of Manrico's freedom; then, mistaking the count for Manrico, she tells him of the tidings of his release, on his way to the prison she sucks poison from a ring she wears, preferring death to the fulfillment of her compact.

In the next scene Azucena is lying on a mattress, Manrico seated at her side. In terror at the death awaiting her she recalls her mother's sufferings, while Manrico attempts to calm her excitement. As the scene closes, she is singing with her familiar duet, "Leonora to Our Mountains," when she orders Manrico to instant execution, forcing Azucena to witness her release, reproaches her bitterly, refusing his liberty. ## OUR ASTROLOGER

ROSOSCOFF FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 28, 1914.

Uranus is in a position which is fortunate, but according to astrology both Mars and Saturn are unfavorable to the individual, especially for commercial trips or for exploration.

It is wise to keep the mind active when Uranus is in beneficent aspect, since the planets are believed to encourage concentration that enables the mind to discover difficult facts and to invent novel ideas. Conditions are most inspiring for inventions or students of occult subjects.

Work for social reforms and humanitarian projects should prosper under this rule.

While Mars with electrical apparatus are supposed to be uncommonly beneficial while Uranus is in a place of power for good.

During the afternoon and evening of the day Mars and Saturn exercise a government held to be exceedingly dangerous to the safety of men and women.

While Mars is so widely disposed it is wise to be temperate in all things, especially in the emotions.

At Luncheon
The luncheon at which Mrs. Frank Inman entertained at the Piedmont club Tuesday afternoon was the first in a series of parties in honor of Mrs. Frederick Gordon, of Columbus, the guest of Mrs. J. K. Orr.

Covers were laid for sixteen on a round table placed on the picturesque terrace of the club. Quaint round baskets filled with mixture of apricot flowers adorned the center of the table. Yellow roses fringed with purple stocks and graceful sprigs gave a charming effect, each basket tied with green tulle.

Seated at the table were Mrs. Gordon, Mrs. L. D. Tyson, of Knoxville, Mrs. J. K. Orr, Mrs. Charles McShee, Mrs. Robert Lowry, Mrs. Ben Lee Crew, Mrs. George Dexter, Mrs. Frank Hawkins, Mrs. J. G. Oglesby, Mrs. William Lawson Peel, Mrs. Don Pardee, Mrs. George Forrester, Mrs. J. M. High, Mrs. Lee Jordan, Mrs. William T. Newman and Mrs. Elsie Willett.

Afternoon Tea at "Knollwood"

Among the lovely affairs of Monday afternoon was the 5 o'clock tea at "Knollwood" at which Mrs. Elsie Willett entertained at their beautiful suburban home, on Peachtree street, in compliment to Mrs. Emory Winship, of Macon, and her sister, Miss Margaret Casey, of California, who are among the well-known visitors attending opera.

The rooms were decorated with quantities of deep pink azalea, snow branches of dogwood and delicate pink apple blossoms.

A refreshing ice and cooling frappe was served on the spacious screened porch which was decorated with rustic apple blossoms and ferns in wicker baskets.

Mrs. Kiser received wearing a charming spring gown of white net trimmed in bright watermelon colored taffeta ruffles and tiny french bows of the bright colored silk. She was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. William Lawson Peel, and sisters, Mrs. William Tilt and Mrs. Phinley Calhoun.

Beautiful Supper Party

A delightfully beautiful affair was the supper party at which Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Richardson entertained Sunday evening at their home on West Peachtree street, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lewellyn Barber, of Baltimore, Md., who are their guests for the opera.

Mr. and Mrs. Richardson received in the east parlor, which was artistically decorated with clusters of spring flowers, effectively combining dusty white snowballs, purple iris and yellow satin-striped saucers.

Brown rustic baskets filled with wild azaleas, dogwood and crabapple blossoms were used in the long reception hall and drawing room. A stringed orchestra, concealed in a palm-screened alcove, rendered a beautiful musical program during the evening.

Covers were laid for sixty-five guests, and among the interesting out-of-town visitors were Dr. and Mrs. Ira Remsen, of Baltimore; Signor Antonio Scotti, Mr. Frank A. Munsey, of New York; Mr. Joseph Cooper, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Marchmont, of New York; Mr. John Patterson, of South Carolina; Miss Annie Clifton Van Dyke, of Chattanooga; Mr. Samuel Dunlap, of Macon, and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Stewart Wheeler, of New York.

The home was artistically adorned with wild spring flowers, and in the dining room, where the guests were served, the buffet was banked with wild honeysuckles and pink sweetpeas, which were also used with artistic effect on the prettily appointed tea table.

Punch was served on the porch, which was canvassed in and hung with hampers and branches of dogwood blossoms. Mrs. Hunt was very charming in a gown of cream-colored crepe trimmed in touches of old rose. Mrs. Carrington wore a taffeta gown in pastel shades, and Mrs. Loyd was gown in embroidered blue crepe with a corsage bouquet of deep pink roses.

Sixty guests were present.

Beautifully appointed table, and place cards and individual favors continued the charming color suggestion of rose and white.

SMART SPRING HAT

A NEW ARRANGEMENT OF FEATHERS IS THIS—AS ODD AS IT IS BECOMING.

What Anne Ruttenhouse Says

PARIS.—There is a new kind of dancing shoe in style and it makes the foot look exceedingly smart and comely. It is more like the Roman caligae than the slipper we have worn during the winter, but its high Louis XIV heel destroys its classic outline.

And by Louis XIV one does not mean the heel that is usually called French; this heel is an exact replica of the one worn in the day of the grand monarch. It is high, but it does not slope to a tiny waist in the middle, and then spread out. It supports the foot rather well because it is wide and solid, and it makes the foot look shorter than any heel yet invented.

It has a sandal sole and is without any support at the sides. The toe and heel part are of broad silk or satin and the strap that goes across the foot and around the ankle are of dull silk braid. The ones that fasten at the ankle are fastened with a small gilt button.

They may not be as comfortable as the heelless sandal for dancing, but they give the foot a better appearance. So far the shoe is quite a novelty, and are more in the shops than on the feet. It is not to be doubted, however, that the early summer weather will bring them into full fashion for smart women have already decreed against the slipper with the satin ribbons crossing the instep and used around the ankle, and there is need of something new.

Over here they tell you that the tango is dead; they are not quite sure what will supersede it, but they think it will be the maxixe.

This dance, like the Argentine tango, has been modified from its original method and put into drawing room form. The tango suffered considerably in having its measures clipped by the French, and it is to be hoped that the Brazilian dance will not suffer in the same way for its measures are as brilliant and graceful as those of its sister dance.

The tango as it is danced in French drawing rooms and music halls and restaurants, has little character. With the elimination of the cortex and the substitution of a lazy sliding step, it is passed in nothingness. Only the professional keep it up to the mark given to it by the Castles in America.

Already the maxixe is showing signs of becoming common-place as many couples dance it only with the two-step movement around and round the room till one would think they would weary of the monotony.

But here comes in the subject of the heel to be worn on dancing slippers; if the maxixe is to be the dance of the summer, then these high heels will not do. I heard one of the best teachers in Paris request his pupils the other night to attempt their lessons in slippers with high heels.

The maxixe requires so much balancing on the heel alone—in fact, it is this movement that gives to it such peculiar grace and novelty—that a woman attempting to do it in an unsteady high heel would lose her balance. This is the only thing against the incoming fashion for the slipper just described.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

By Thurston W. Burgess

Bumble, Bumble, Bumble Bee, Somebody is seeking thee. Not for honey, Not for money, But to have a word with thee, Handsome Mr. Bumble Bee.

That somebody was Peter Rabbit. You see it was this way: When Jimmy Skunk had said that if he wanted to find the storehouse of Busy Bee he wouldn't waste his time and break his back by looking for it, but would ask someone who knew where it was to tell him, he put an idea into Peter Rabbit's head. Peter wanted to find that storehouse of Busy Bee. What for? Why to tell Buster Bear, for Buster had said that he wanted some honey and Peter, like all the other little people who were afraid of Buster, wanted to find it for him so that he would be a friend.

Jimmy Skunk, who lent afraid of Buster, and so didn't care anything about finding that storehouse of Busy Bee, had made fun of all those who were looking for it, but he had given Peter just the idea he wanted.

He could hardly wait for Jimmy to go on about his business, he was so anxious to try it.

"Of course," said Peter to himself, "if any one knows where Busy Bee's storehouse is it will be her cousin, Bumble Bee. Bumble is a pretty good friend of mine and perhaps he will tell me. Of course I won't tell him that I want to know, because if he knew that Buster Bear wanted to steal the honey he wouldn't tell me. I'll just let him think that it is my natural curiosity."

So as soon as Jimmy had gone on about his business, Peter started out to hunt for Bumble. "I'll be sure to find him where the brightest flowers are," thought Peter. So away he went across the beautiful meadow.

He was looking for the brightest flowers. But there were so many of them that it was hard work to tell which were the brightest. Peter sighed. It looked as if it would be more of a task to find Bumble than he had thought it would be. But it would be worth a whole lot of trouble to find out where that storehouse of honey was and so win Buster Bear for a friend, and so Peter hurried lightly-lighly-lighly, from one bright group of flowers to another.

It would have been hard enough if he had had nothing to do but look for Bumble, but he did have other things to do. He had to watch out for Reddy and Grumpy Fox. He had to watch out for Old Man Coyote. He had to watch out for members of the Hawk family, who are very fond of dining on Rabbit.

So, whenever Peter had to cross an open place to get from one group of flowers to another, he first had to sit up and look all over the Green Meadows to see that no danger was near, and then all around in the sky to see that no danger was likely to come from there.

Then when he had scamped across the open place he had to do it all over again before he dared look for Bumble.

Two or three times bright-faced flowers whispered that Bumble had been there and had just gone. Then Peter hurried on, hoping that he would never. But always he was just too late. At last he grew quite discouraged and sat down to rest.

"Bumble is always around when he isn't wanted and never around when he is wanted," he grumbled.

Not to attempt their lessons in slippers with high heels.

The maxixe requires so much balancing on the heel alone—in fact, it is this movement that gives to it such peculiar grace and novelty—that a woman attempting to do it in an unsteady high heel would lose her balance. This is the only thing against the incoming fashion for the slipper just described.

South Well Represented at Convention of Drama League

The fourth annual convention of the Drama League of America, which was held during the past week in Philadelphia, came to a close Saturday evening at Bellevue Stratford.

Delegates were present from every section of the country, Georgia being represented by Miss Carolyn Cobb, who is state representative of the Atlanta center.

General regret was expressed at the resignation of Mrs. Best as president, and afterwards Dr. Richard Burton was unanimously elected president of the league.

Miss Cobb made a splendid address, in which she expressed the belief that the future work of Atlanta will contribute largely to the success of the league in the south. Extracts from the speech were published in the Philadelphia Press.

Regret was expressed at the absence of Mrs. William C. Spiker, president of the Atlanta center of the Drama League.

Miss Cobb was appointed chairman of a committee for the southern circuit. The playwriting contest of the Atlanta center was complimented, and it was reported that centers were being organized in Columbus and Macon during May.

How They Bat

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 27.—Jack Love, center fielder of the Memphis ball club and rated last year as one of the best men in the Southern league, today was sold to the Beaumont club of the Texas league. Love has shown miserable form this year. Before the playing season local dopesters had him the brains and playing strength of the Jesse Ward and George (Boer) Rodel, the former weighing 250 pounds and the latter 215, are finishing their training today for their ten-round battle at the Orpheum theater Tuesday night. Each man is confident of victory, and one of the greatest heavyweight bouts ever staged in the south is expected by the wise ones.

Rodel arrived this morning on the Seaboard from New York. The big fellow could be in tip-top condition and comes here for a victory over Dan Daley in New York on Saturday night.

Hit the Bull and Get a New Lid

As was announced some time since, the American Tobacco company which has made it a practice for several seasons to give cash prizes for players who hit their signs in ball parks all over the country has withdrawn the offer this year. However, local players will still have the old mark to shoot at here at Ponce de Leon. Miller Dismukes, Peachtree street hat man, has plastered a sign on the "bull," and promises a new "lid" to every player who smacks the ball against the sign this season.

who will get that Shriners' show. I am going to win Tuesday night and I honestly expect it will be by a knockout, too."

Willard Not Worried.
But Willard is just as confident. And so is his manager, Tom Jones, the man who has piloted such men as Billy Papke and Ad Wolgast to champion-

"Willard is the greatest white battler that ever lived," said Jones upon his arrival. "You know I am kept pretty busy handling Wolgast, and you don't think that I would spend any time with Willard if I didn't know he was a champion."

"I am going to offer Rodel a good proposition if he thinks he has a cinch. I will bet him our end of the purse against him and give him his car fare back to New York if he loses, while if Willard is defeated we won't even ask about six or seven rounds. He has Rodel's 'number' and can't lose. I look for a very interesting scrap for about five rounds. Then Jesse's weight (256 pounds) and his exceedingly heavy punching power will begin to count."

Owing to a new arrangement of seats at the Orpheum, tickets did not go on sale Saturday as expected. The ring-side seats on the stage have been banked and it was impossible until this morning to get tickets printed for these seats. They will, however, be on sale at the Rex and Tumlin Brothers' stores this afternoon.

Crackers Open Four-Game Series With Turtles This Afternoon

LITTLE PAL---HE CAN'T MAKE FRIENDS WITH WIDOW'S PROTECTOR

BY LEO

Crackers Open 4-Game Series With Turtles

Teams Play First Game This Afternoon, Beginning at 4 o'clock--Finn Has Practically New Team--Locals Are Crippled

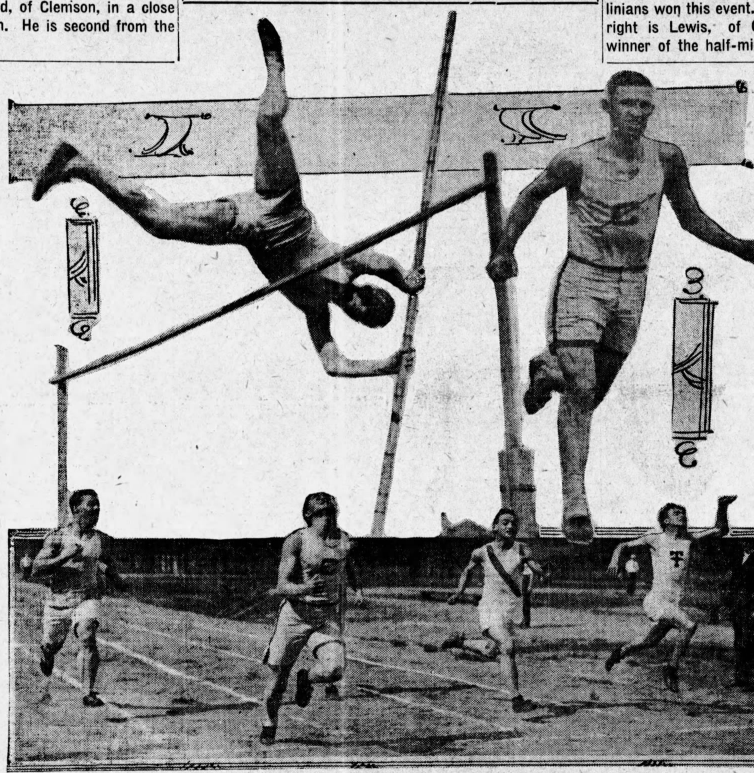

With Mike Finn's shell-back athletes, popularly known as the Turtles, facing the opposition, the Crackers begin their second series of the home season at Ponce de Leon this afternoon. It is the fact that the Memorial baseball will work at least one game on the mound, as will Merrett, but other than these the Turtles will be new talent. Of course Dolly has, who will play third, has appeared here before, but for some two or three seasons past Dolly has worked in other clubs.

At first, Finn will have Allison, a transfer recently obtained from the Atlanta Braves, as his pitcher. The regular guardian of the first base, as is at present out of running order. At second, Mullen, a newcomer, is being duty. Either George Schell or Harry Benke will do the catching. Both are major league players, and neither has played in this league before. In the middle, Norman Coyle, a brother of the Chattanooga first baseman, and two transfers, Senneker and Duggan, will hold forth. Jack Love has just recently been sold to Beaumont of the Texas League.

The Crackers will go into the battle with a fairly crippled battle front. Harry Widdowson is out of the fray with attack of grippe. This morning the condition was reported as none too favorable. He has considerable fever, and it is feared that he will be out of the game for some time. His condition is not considered serious, however. Tommy Long is also on the shelf with the lung distention sustained in sliding a base in one of the Chattanooga games. George Kircher will draw the first pitch, and either Schell or Benke will be a pitcher or a catcher who has to be worked in the other gap.

At the bottom is shown the finish of the 220-yard dash, which was captured by LeGrand, of Clemson, in a close finish. He is second from the left.

Donovan's Club Claims Player Harry Holland

Providence, of International League, Claims Services of Cracker Player on Ground That He Should Have Been Offered on Waiver

Manager Bill Smith and the Atlanta Baseball association were rather nonplussed at instruction received during the past two days concerning the disposition of Harry Holland, who has been claimed by the Providence club of the International League. While the team was in Chattanooga, Manager Smith received a telegram from Harry Holland of the above club, requesting that Manager Smith have him transferred to that club at once. A short time later, he received another message from President Kavanaugh, who likewise instructed him to have Harry report to the Providence club. The situation with reference to Harry is this: He was purchased last fall by the Washington club, but was hardly fast enough for the majors especially in face of the competition that he had to meet on the Senators' infield. Hence Manager Griffith, after obtaining waivers from the other clubs of the two big leagues, transferred him to Atlanta. Now under the agreement that after playing for Harry had been reverted to the Crackers without doubt, but this does not apply in the case of players who have been purchased. Hence it appears that he should have been offered to other clubs in the three AA leagues before being turned back to the locals. There is, however, a further consideration. A limit of five days is given for claiming a player, and it appears that the Providence club allowed this time to elapse. However, they probably have some grounds for making the claim even at this late date, since Harry reported back to Manager Smith about a month ago.

Another angle is added to the situation by the announcement on the part of Holland that he will not report to the Providence club. Harry states that unless he is allowed to play in the south, he will not play at all. Manager Smith and President Callaway are trying to prevail on President Navin of the Detroit club, who also owns the Providence franchise, to allow Holland to remain here, and it is possible that a satisfactory adjustment of the claim can be made.

Jackets Play Miss. "Aggies" This Afternoon

After Winning Series From Alabama the Tech. Team Moves Over to Starkville for Two Games--Bryant Will Twirl for the Jackets

STARKVILLE, Miss., April 27.—The Georgia Tech baseball team opens a two-game series with the Mississippi A. and M. college team here this afternoon. The Georgians arrived here fresh from their victory over the University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa, where they took two out of three games from the Tuscaloosa boys. After losing the first game by a one-sided score, the Tech boys came back strong on Saturday, and won both games of a double-header by wide margins.

The local collegians have a fast team this season, and expect to make the Tech boys play their best to win. Tech is expected to pitch Bryant, their big left-hander, while the home boys have not announced, who will start the opener for them. Following the two games, Tech will return home, where they will play Alabama again.

Today's Batteries

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 27.—Nashville made her initial appearance of the season here today, meeting Chattanooga in the first game of a four-game series. The game was called at 3:30. Batteries: Chattanooga, Kohn or Hardin and Street; Nashville, More and Smith.

MOBILE, Ala., April 27.—Flushed with their victory in five games, the Mobile team made the game at a corner at 3:30 o'clock with Birmingham will endeavor to make it two straight and announced that Pitcher Kealey, with Schmidt catching, will head his progress while the Braves and Truesdale will work for Birmingham.

NEW ORLEANS, April 27.—After the easy defeat yesterday of the Montgomery team in the first game of the series, New Orleans players had high hopes today of increasing their lead in the league race.

Either Evans or McIntire, the latter an old-time major league player, will pitch, and Adams is expected to do the receiving for New Orleans. The visitors probably will be Black and Kleinow. Play started at 3:30 p. m.

Rome Defeated by Amateur Team

ROME, April 27.—Hopes of Romans for a winning team in the Georgia-Alabama series were shattered tonight by the second exhibition game of the season, in which the fast team of Lindsell defeated Rome. The Georgia-Alabama season opens May 4, and Rome will play at Newnan. Arrangements are being made for a special train to carry several hundred fans to witness the first battle.

Questions and Answers

QUESTION.

Powerville, Ga.
I have two little red turkeys, poults about two and one-half months old. One of them hasn't eaten much in two weeks and is very poor. She seems to want to eat, but will not eat much. Have given her two doses of quinine and cod liver oil. If you can tell me anything to help her I will appreciate it very much.
MRS. J. R. W.

ANSWER.

If you will give the poult a dose of Givory's Vermifuge it will relieve them of worms, which all poult usually have, and their appetite will come after these worms.
Give the Vermifuge three times a week for two or three doses. You can get this of your druggist at 50c per bottle.
If the poult does not improve after these treatments, then you should have them when they are six weeks old and another one when they are ten weeks old.

MAKE PUBLIC LEGISLATION FOR LABOR CORRECTION

Federal Industrial Chairman
Says Proposals Invite Criticism and Suggestions

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, April 27.—Proposals for federal legislation to correct labor market conditions and thus prevent annual recurrence of unemployment were made public here today by

The proposed legislation would establish a national bureau of labor exchange.

The bureau would have power to establish and conduct free public employment in connection with the department of labor with a central office in Washington and branch offices in other cities and with a clearing house for each of the several districts into which the country would be divided.

It would also have jurisdiction of private employment offices doing interstate business or accepting workmen for shipment to other states. State, municipal and private employment offices would be urged to co-operate and adopt uniform methods and regulations.

The bureau's most important service would be to gather and distribute accurate information regarding the labor market in various localities. This information would be published in the form of bulletins and would be made available to persons seeking work.

Before the proposals are put into form of a bill for presentation to congress the commission will hear suggestions from many witnesses. To that it will begin a series of hearings in New York City on May 4, which will include large industrial centers.

THE CRUSADE FOR BETTER BABIES

The crusade for better babies has spread from coast to coast, and taken form from Atlanta to Atlanta. Few women here are so much interested in the health of the mother and the health of the child, both physically and mentally, as the women who suffer from nervous, painful, backache, nervousness, mental depression, headaches, etc., should rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, which for nearly forty years has been the standard remedy for these ailments.—(Adv.)

ATTACKS ON EVIL TO BE CONTINUED

Taking as his text, Men and Religion Forward Movement bulletin No. 118, Rev. H. C. Jackson, of the Georgia State convention, addressed a large congregation at the Moore Memorial church Sunday evening, declaring that the attack on all evil would be continued. He said that those in Atlanta who are fighting the powers for their activities against evil, are not really fighting them, but are arrayed against Jesus Christ. Every man in the church, he said, who is opposing the fight now on, is aligned with the forces of evil.

AN ATLANTA REPORT Fully Corroborated and Easily Investigated

Do you need a good kidney medicine? Then read the reports in these very columns of Atlanta persons cured or benefited with Doan's Kidney Pills. You won't have to go far to find out if they are true. This Atlanta case is an example. Others will follow.

Mrs. George Campbell, 276 Glenwood Ave., Atlanta, Ga., writes: "About six months ago I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and found them very satisfactory. I had suffered for about a year from disordered kidneys. I was afflicted with heavy, bearing-down pain in my back and was subject to severe headaches, sometimes so bad that I couldn't stoop to put on my shoes. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally procured for me at Jacob's Pharmacy and they soon brought me relief. I have unlimited confidence in this remedy."

Waldron, Ark.—Miss Gertrude Houston, of this place, authorizes the following statement: "I was in the habit of ladies who suffer from any kind of womanly trouble, among them, weakness, headache, backache, burning in side, pains every month, nervousness, etc., to try Cardui, the woman's tonic. Get it at once, as it is what you need. After you use one bottle, you will never regret your start."

I was just about past going for over two years, with the above ailments, and had it not been for Cardui, I would have been helpless, no doubt.

I took one bottle, and my health began to improve, and before long I was gone. I was almost well. Now, my health is perfectly all right.

So, lady friends, if you want a medicine that will do you real good, take Cardui, the woman's tonic.

If you are weak and ailing, think what it would mean to move so rapidly and surely as did Miss Houston. In the past 10 years, this strength-building remedy has been used by more than a million ladies, who found it of untold value in relieving womanly pains and ailments.

If you are a woman, therefore, try Cardui. You will appreciate its tonic-building effect on the womanly constitution. Begin today.—(Adv.)
